A black and white photograph featuring a white background with the word "MUSIC" repeated diagonally in a light, sans-serif font. Overlaid on this background are large, thick, black, stylized letters that appear to be part of the word "MUSIC". The letters are bold and have a slightly irregular, hand-drawn quality. The overall composition is abstract and artistic.

The image shows a book cover with a repeating diagonal pattern of the word "ACTIVITIES". The text is in a light, sans-serif font, creating a textured background. In the bottom right corner, there is a large, bold, black number "3" that appears to be hand-drawn or stamped over the pattern. The overall aesthetic is minimalist and graphic.

A TRIBUTE TO THE CLASS OF 1985

Goodbyes have different meanings to us all. It is a time when emptiness is felt, a time when love for one another really shows through. Like a box, our friends fill the space in our hearts, and when they leave, there is emptiness.

I cannot speak for you, but I will not say goodbye. I must say hello. We must all live in the real world now; high school cannot cradle us any longer. I feel a certain love for life, but it does not overpower my love for my friends. The strings that attach us to one another do not have to be cut, just loosened enough so that each may grow to his own potential.

Fears dwell throughout me because I now know that I am in charge. I cannot lean on everyone for strength anymore. I must carry my own weight. Feeling like a child taking his first steps, I realize that I could fall at any time. But, if I do fall, I realize too that I must get up and start over again. My peers cannot always help me up. I also can't let the fear of hurting myself interfere, for if I did, I would never walk or run.

I think we all have the fear of being alone. It is a fear we cannot help but have. But we must proceed, and our memories will help us to succeed in life.

Goodbyes are only what we make them. Love is a part of it, as well as pain. But so many hellos are ahead! Cry for now, but never forget the love that holds us together.
